

How it Works

After each party has met with his or her own Collaborative Lawyer, a four-way meeting is scheduled.

The Participation Agreement is usually signed by all four people at the first four-way meeting.

Through a series of four-way meetings, the legal issues are identified and the parties reach terms of settlement of each legal issue.

The parties sign a Separation Agreement drafted by one of the lawyers.

The Separation Agreement can be filed in court and become the final order resolving the legal issues between the parties.

When you have a signed Separation Agreement you can proceed to a No Court Divorce.

We recommend you read the book called The Collaborative Way to Divorce written by the founders of Collaborative Law, Stuart G. Webb and Ronald D. Ousky.

Contact Us

www.nocourt.ca

(250) 354-1881

Nelson, British Columbia, Canada

Alternative Dispute Resolution

COLLABORATIVE PRACTICE
Resolving Disputes Respectfully